【 About UDP 】

The Crown Jewels of Sinology in Taiwan

★ To be “the pearl of Sinology”

Concept behind the logo design of UDP: the “blue sea” beneath signifies Taiwan’s characters as a maritime country — broad-minded, tolerant and flexible. Next, UDP’s Chinese title “聯合百科” locates at the top, presented in the form of calligraphy which symbolizes our mission to promote Chinese culture. Finally, you can see the red pearl imbedded in “udp,” the abbreviation of our English title. It stands for our high-quality archives of Asian studies — the pearl of sinology.

★ High-quality database brand on humanities and social sciences

Meanwhile, “pearl” also represents “small and refined Niche market,” which sounds UDP must stick to professional, in-depth position and select content cautiously. To build own brand and high-quality databases on humanities and social sciences is our goal while developing good, full-text searchable databases to meet researchers demand is our core spirit.

★ World-class products sold to 27 countries globally

UDP has been developing/representing 30+ Chinese databases (including Chinese, English, Japanese, Russian, Arabic, ect.), processing 3 billion characters, trusted by 1,200+ libraries and academic institutes of 27 countries from Asia, America, Europe and Oceania. We offers comprehensive databases of Asian studies/sinology, starting from our central focus of Taiwan, then to Greater China, and finally to the key research issues that have been discussed by sinologists worldwide.

★ The crown jewels of Sinology in Taiwan

We offer precious, exclusive content and unique added-value search functions to enrich your research treasures. Especially, National Palace Museum Journals Archive and Sinica Sinoweb can be rated as “the crown jewels of sinology in Taiwan” while being UDP’s representative products as well. Hopefully, users will be able to enjoy the prosperous sinology treasure and its new charm based on digital technology.
